May 2018 Washington, DC Market Trends Report Sales at record high for May while supply remains scarce

Washington, DC – (June 12, 2018) – The following analysis of the Washington, DC housing market has been prepared for the Greater Capital Area Association of REALTORS® based on analysis of Bright MLS multiple listing data by MarketStats by ShowingTime.

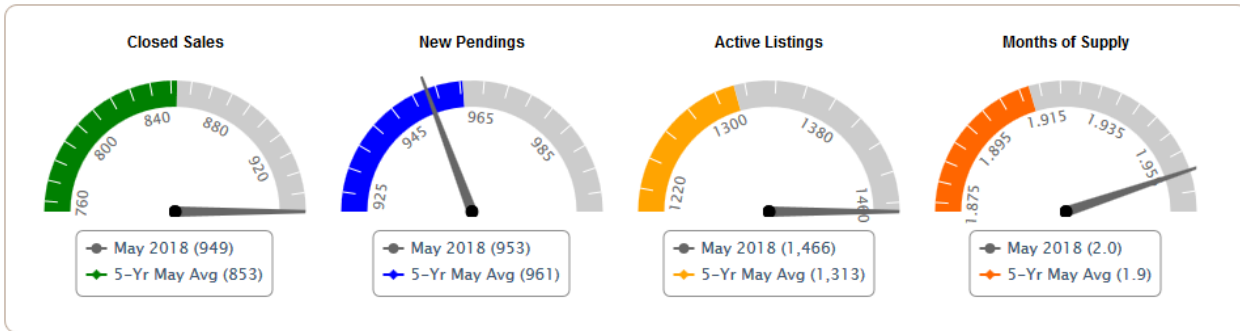

Overview

May's median sales price was $596,000, down .5 percent compared to last year's median. The 949 May sales represented a 2.6 percent increase versus last year and above the May 5-year average of 853. In fact, it was the highest for May sales since 1997. Even with the median sales price near record highs, supply is scarce with only 2.0 months of supply on hand. There was a 5.1 percent drop in contract activity compared to last May. The 953 overall new pending sales are below the five-year May average by .8 percent. Closed sales were down in detached and townhouse segments, but up in the co-op/condo segments compared to last May. Half the homes sold in May were on the market for eight days or less and the competition among buyers kept the median percent of asking price at 100 percent.
